Face Claim

A pretty face on top of a well sculpted body. Conners life revolves around two things, work and working out. And his body is proof of this dull routine, but he loves it. He has freckles along his cheeks and his chest,

History

History

To the O'Sullivan name. If you want something. You should get it by pure will and determination alone.

Conners father was a professional wrestler who met his mother while they were working out in the same gym, when Conner was conceived, Conners father had to travel the world as an indie pro wrestler in order to make enough money to pay the bills and Conner grew up aspiring to be just like his father. So, when he was sixteen, he began to practice professional wrestling. Making a small name for himself working as a Jobber, someone who would usually work hard to throw the match and make the other wrestler look good and Conner was satisfied until he graduated high-school and got the chance to work alongside his father, traveling the world and booking indie dates to earn money and pay the bills together.

When he turned 19, Conner said his goodbyes to his family, and with the money saved up over the years Conner moved to Maryland and began to work small indie matches to get money, working his family trade until his money couldn't support him anymore. Usually going to bed hungry in order to get enough money to pay rent the next day.

Unfortunately, Conner had to hang up his tights when he realized he couldn't earn a living this way, and instead got a job working as a trainer for other professional wrestlers, and a night shift at a local convenience store and began to work on his finances. Minimalizing everything so that he could work, day in and day out, slowly getting the money to open up a gym of his own so he could teach people his ways of wrestling. And this came when his father returned to give Conner the needed push to purchase the gym.

From there. Conner thrived as a personal trainer for the gym, teaching those willing his style of professional wrestling, and helping people with workout routines.
