Hunter has a well trained pack of 4 large dog Doberman ghouls which usually accompany him when he goes hunting. Sometimes he'll leave some to guard particular locations but likely has 2 with him at all times. He has bred them generation to generation guiding their traits to the most favorable strength and stamina, and the ghouling of them increases their strength and fortitude even further.

Status

Other

Hunter lays claim to the Baltimore Zoo in entirety, any trespass by others into his domain without invitation is quickly noticed and dealt with harshly. Over the years anarchs and sabbat may have had 'clever' ideas to steal a zoo animal for ghouling and create themselves a powerful pet but such ambitious kindred have a tendency to vanish without a trace their plans unrealized. The prince appreciates the guarding of a corner of his city and the fact that the Gangrel Primogen is highly resistance to magics isn't something he is going to contest anytime without good reason.

History

History

Hunter was born in the American Colonies right as the American Revolution was rising. He lived through the birth of the nation and it was in the aftermath he was moving down to Maryland to settle down. In a bar he got into a fight with some colonial loudmouths and managed to win against three of them in a brawl. A viking age gangrel nearby took a liking to his animalistic fighting and embraced him, teaching him the ways of the wilds. He roamed for some time but eventually decided he wanted to have companionship and joined a coterie of kindred of the Camarilla so he could ghou and raise some fine Doberman breed dogs. Raising them from youth he made them his pack and sold their offspring for cash to wealthy owners who desired such. As the centuries turned things changed and he came into contact with sabbat and anarchs finding them repellent creatures with ideals inhuman in their base desires.

He has no love for the Tremere Prince of the city but when he heard what was planned in 2012 he organized a hunt of the sabbat pincering them from the south up into Baltimore, squeezing their forces on multiple fronts. When the dust cleared he and Prince William had tense negotiations where he ended up accepting Primogeniture of the Gangrel in exchange for the domain of the Baltimore Zoo and to be left mostly to himself while guarding the southern borders. The Prince and him have clashed politically many times over the years but neither has moved against the other in any significant way. Still if weakness in the leadership is smelled who knows what the Gangrel Primogen might say about replacing the Prince with a better one...
